Off Course

WASHINGTON (AP) — An airliner carrying 214 U.S. servicemen to Vietnam is being held today on a Soviet island in the Pacific Ocean after being forced to land by MIG fighters.

The chartered DC-8 was on its way to Vietnam from McChord Air Base in Seattle, Wash., Sunday when, the U.S. government said, it strayed off course and was forced to land on Iturup Island, a part of the Kuril chain in the northern Pacific.

The State Department immediately contacted the Soviet embassy in Washington and urged the quick release of the plane, its passengers and the 17 crewmen.

A Japanese Air Force Radar Station said it began tracking the plane at 7:30 p.m. EDT Sunday and warned the pilot he was on a course that would cross the Soviet-held island.

CAN'T GET AWAY
The pilot replied, "We cannot alter our course." Japanese sources said, indicating the plane already was under MIG escort.

The sources said the plane was tracked another five minutes before it disappeared from radar screens at a position about 30 miles south of Iturup Island.

U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn E. Thompson said in Moscow he was told by Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin and First Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov the incident is under investigation.

The Pentagon said the pilot of the chartered Seaboard-World Airlines jet, Joseph Tosolini, talked by radio with another American aircraft during the incident.

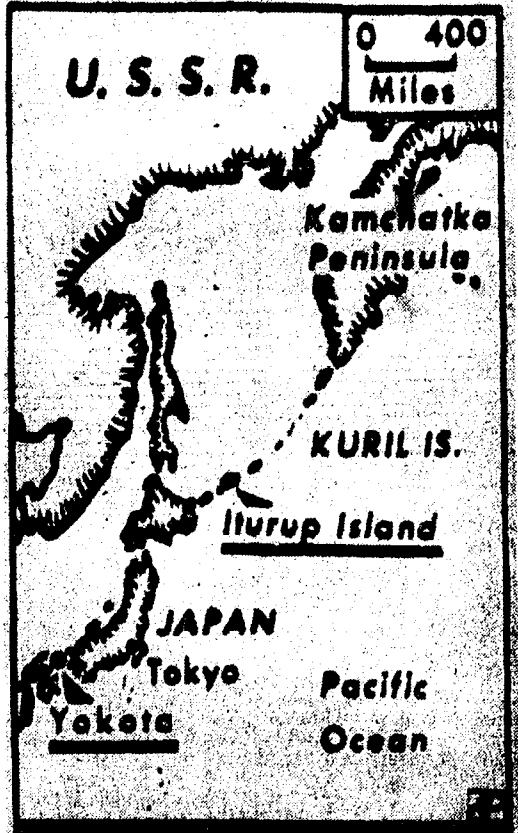

According to the Pentagon, the pilot of the Seaboard plane reported about 7:20 p.m. that MIG fighters had intercepted him and was forcing him to land at what appeared to be a MIG base on an island.

At 7:39 p.m., the Pentagon said, the Seaboard plane radioed that it had landed without injury to anyone on board and without damage to the plane.

The last transmission was at 7:42 p.m. when the pilot reported he had shut off his engines, the Pentagon said.

The Defense Department, in announcing that the plane had

Democrats Irked By McCarthy's Saying He Might Back Rocky

Statement Made In Lansing

Seen As Slap
At Humphrey

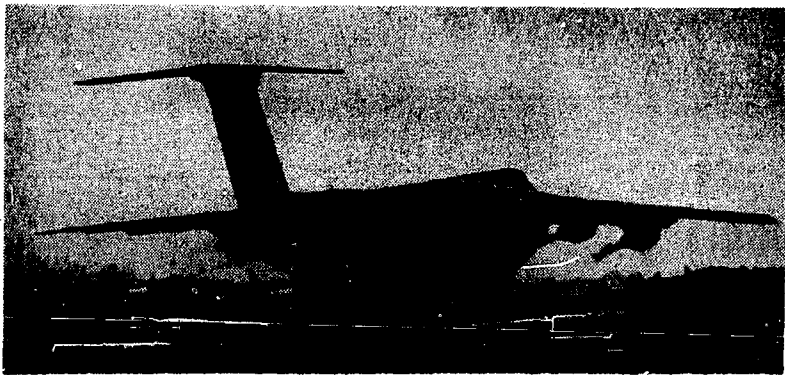

LANSING (AP)—Many Michigan delegates to the Democratic National Convention reacted negatively to a statement Sunday by Sen. Eugene McCarthy who said he might support New York's Republican Gov. Nelson Rockefeller for President.

The Minnesota Democrat made the statement during an exchange with August "Gus" Scholle, president of the Michigan AFL-CIO and a supporter of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey for the party's presidential nomination.

"I might go for Rockefeller if his domestic and foreign policy program were acceptable," a delegate quoted McCarthy as saying.

McCarthy has hinted he would not support Humphrey if the Vice President did not change his position on Vietnam and other issues.

There were no loud outcries of protest, state chairman Sander Levin said. But many quietly muttered "no" and others shook their heads in disapproval. Rep. Dale Kildee, D-

Flint, an uncommitted delegate prior to the meeting, said afterward he now would support Humphrey.

Scholle said he thought the remark would effectively bury McCarthy.

"HURT HIMSELF BADLY"
"It is my feeling that he hurt himself very badly," added Levin.

McCarthy made the statement in a meeting closed to the press.

Later, in Chicago, a McCarthy aide said the Minnesota senator might support the Republican governor.

—If Humphrey is the Democratic nominee.

—If Humphrey refuses to modify his foreign and domestic policy positions to conform more closely to McCarthy's stand.

—If the Vice President's nomination results in the same kind of exclusion practiced by the New York delegation.

—If Rockefeller is the Republican nominee.

Neil Staebler, Michigan Democratic national committeeman, refused to discuss the McCarthy statement. But he said, "People don't like a statement about not supporting a ticket."

He added that candidates of both parties campaign in the primary on the assumption that

Governors Criticize Minnesotan

Gene's Slip May Aid Humphrey

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy drew criticism from Midwestern Democratic governors Sunday night for suggesting he might support Republican Gov. Nelson Rockefeller for President.

One of the governors who learned of the McCarthy statement on his arrival for the annual Midwest Governors Conference, said the Minnesota Senator's remark virtually could clinch the Democratic presidential nomination for Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

McCarthy, at a closed session of Michigan convention delegation in Lansing, Mich., said: "I might go for Rockefeller if his domestic and foreign policy programs were acceptable."

NAIL IN COFFIN
"This surely will be a good nail in McCarthy's coffin, if he still wants the nomination," said Gov. Robert Docking of Kansas.

Two other Democratic governors backing Humphrey, Warren E. Hearnes of Missouri and Hulett Smith of West Virginia, voiced disappointment over the statement.

"What we need today are people who will stand up for their party and their beliefs," Smith said. "I see nothing wrong with being a Democrat and supporting my party."

"It surprises me," said Hearnes, "that he would make such a statement. That's not exactly the best way to pick up delegates to the convention."

Hearnes added however, that he thought intraparty differences among Republicans would help "offset" Democratic party disunity.

The Missouri governor said he thought Rockefeller's chances of winning the GOP nomination are remote. "I don't believe they are going to stop Nixon," he said.

Republican governors at the conference generally reserved comment. An exception, Gov. Nils Boe of South Dakota, said he is "always very happy to see any Democrat support a Republican."

Although the governors voiced hope of avoiding politics at the

DeGaulle Wins By Landslide

PARIS (AP) — After France's biggest election landslide in 49 years President Charles de Gaulle had a mandate today to repair the economic damage of weeks of labor and social strife and to carry out a sweeping reform of France's industrial and educational systems.

The voters in the final round Sunday of the two-stage National Assembly elections gave the Gaullists and their allies a majority of more than 200 seats in the 487-seat legislature.

There has been no such landslide in French parliamentary history since the 1919 victory of a nationalist coalition. It was also a crushing setback to the Communists and other opposition forces.

In every war, the Black American has proven himself. This is but one of the facts of Negro history in America which you will read in "The Last American," a 24-part series written by Don Oakley and illustrated by John Lane, starting today in this newspaper. ## Ten Cars Damaged By Vandals

SOUTH HAVEN — City police said today they were looking for the vandals responsible for nearly $20,000 in damage to about 10 cars parked in three used car lots here during the weekend. Police said someone drove a vehicle into the sides of all 10 cars in lots at Decker Olds on Phillips street and Jack Seiler Auto Sales and Town and Country Ford, both on LaGrange streets. Six of the cars were damaged at Town and Country Ford.

This was expected to be an announcement that the two atomic super powers have agreed to talks on limiting offensive missiles and antimissile systems, which both sides are

LBJ To Speak On New Curbs For Arms Race

WASHINGTON (AP) — The signing of the historic nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty today was billed by the White House as an occasion for an important statement by President Johnson. Speculation was that it would deal with ways to ease the Soviet-U.S. arms race.

More than 50 nations were to join in the nationally-televised ceremonies in the spacious White House East Room. Pleased U.S. officials reported that 10 countries asked over the weekend to be added to the list of nations to sign the agreement.

Eventually 100 or so nations — with the significant exceptions of junior atomic powers France and Red China — are expected to ratify the landmark treaty to curb the spread of nuclear weapons. The pact goes into force when ratified by 40 governments, including the three nuclear sponsors: Great Britain, the United States and the Soviet Union.

Name Judge To Head Road Probe

LANSING (AP) — Ingham County Circuit Judge Marvin Salmon today was named to head the one-man grand jury investigation of the State Highway Department.

Salmon, 62, said he expected to immediately begin the probe sought by Gov. George Romney and Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley.

The Romney-Kelley petition requesting the probe alleged that officers had been bribed and that "organized crime" had gained a foothold in the department.

Twin Girls, 11, Slain In Detroit

Victim Leaps Out Window
Pursued By Killer

DETROIT (AP) — Five teams of homicide detectives today pressed an intensive hunt for a slayer who killed 11-year-old twin sisters with a butcher knife early Sunday, catching one of the girls in an alley after she jumped from her bedroom in a vain effort to escape him.

Victims of the double slaying were Deanne Guiley and her sister, Nora Ann, described by neighbors as inseparable playmates. Nora Ann, a sixth grade student in A.L. Holmes elementary school, was slashed to death in her bedroom. Her body was found on the floor near the blood-spattered bed.

Deanne, according to homicide officers, jumped out of her first floor bedroom window and ran up an alley with the killer in pursuit. She got less than a block before the killer caught up with her and dealt the first of 17 stab wounds in her back, police said. A trail of blood ran over 200 feet from the spot where her body was found.

BROTHER AWAKENED
The tragedy was discovered by the girls' older brother, Elwin, 16, who said he was awakened by strange noises about 3:40 a.m. He said there had been a prowling incident near the house recently.

"I grabbed a knife and went outside to look around the house and see if anyone was there," he said. The youth said he found the kitchen door had been forced open and a lamp overturned.

He said he went to his sisters' bedroom and saw Nora Ann's body. The youth then ran outside, hailed a passing police car and officers called for additional units to hunt for the second girl.

Her body was found 30 minutes later in an alley less than a block from the family's two-story low income home in an integrated area on Detroit's East Side.

The girls' mother, Mrs. Katherine Woody, and the children's stepfather, Kermit Woody, a janitor, were asleep in the house as were two other children. All were Mrs. Woody's children by a previous marriage. Their father had died, Elwin said.

SISTERS MURDERED: Eleven-year-old twin sisters Nora Ann, left, and Deanne Guiley were found stabbed to death early Sunday in a Detroit East Side neighborhood. The stabbings were discovered when the girls' 16-year-old brother, Elwin, was awakened by strange sounds. Police said Elwin found Nora's body covered with blood in her bedroom. Deanne was found in a backyard several houses away. The twins are shown earlier this year with their pet dog Rocky. Picture was made by a neighbor woman last April. (AP Wirephoto)

Muddling Through
Towards Uncle Sam

Britain's resolve to put its economic affairs in order seems to be ebbing rapidly under the lulling influence of balmy weather. Shoppers crowd the stores of Regent Street for traditional June-July sales. An unexpectedly high level of consumer spending is one of the reasons why, as the London Evening Standard put it, "the economy is not quite right."

This is supposed to be a period of stringency and denial for Britons in the interest of firming up the already devalued pound sterling. But labor-management petulance in key industries is undermining the effort. A strike by BOAC pilots, a spate of wildcat stoppages in the auto industry, and a "go-slow" campaign by railway drivers give rise to fears of a worsening economic picture.

Worker grievances are real enough. Some 187 women who sew car seat covers at the Ford plant in Dagenham, for example, struck in a rather pathetic attempt to get equal pay with men. By working from 7:30 a.m. until 5:15 p.m., they now earn about $40 a week. They want five cents an hour more.

Many Britons have a terrible time keeping up appearances under the prevailing wage structure. A typical male worker labors 46 hours a week for an average wage of $51.30. A woman working 38 hours averages $26.40 a week. Meanwhile, prices on many goods are being raised indirectly by the government under the austerity program.

Labor may be cheap, but it remains in surplus on the unskilled levels. There were 516,892 registered unemployed in Britain this June, the highest number for the month since 1947. Industrial activity and confidence is quickening with the warm weather, but 55 per cent of the firms worked below capacity in June. Nor was any real improvement shown in the critical overseas trading account in May; the net result was a trade deficit of $216 million, the second highest recorded deficit this year.

Even the waspish British press can work up little invective at a time when national attention is focused on the fashions at the Asco meet and the delicious scandal of the House of Lords. Commenting on the trade picture, the Times of London blandly concludes: "As things stand, there is no cause that any immediate monetary pressures can be withstood because the international community cannot afford to let a financial forest fire break out in the United Kingdom."

The new emphasis on outside help has led to a growing interest in the possibility of a North Atlantic Free Trade Area. A conference will be held in London in July to discuss the question. In essence, the plans involve an Atlantic trade liberalization centered around the U.S. economy.

Such a pact, into which Canada and even Australia, New Zealand and Japan would enter along with the six-nation European Free Trade Association, is seen as an alternative to British membership in the Common Market. Current disturbances on the continent, especially in France and Germany, are turning British public opinion against the still official policy of seeking Common market.

Britain, 'is, of course, a long way from becoming a shadow 51st state. But it appears that in coming months the Wilson government will be looking to the United States for more help to solve chronic economic problems that defy solution here.

After 28 Years

Twenty years of independence, followed by 28 years of rule by Communist Russia which, in violation of solemn treaties, occupied their lands and forced them into the Soviet Union.

That, in briefest terms, is the history of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania in the years that have passed since 1920 when they were given national identities under the treaty of Versailles.

The invasion of these three countries in June, 1940, stands as one of the great crimes of history. In 1932 they had entered into non-aggression pacts with the Soviet Union. But the end came swiftly eight years later on the heels of a sudden ultimatum. Two months more and the three nations were formally declared part of Russia.

Available information is to the effect that by 1950 290,000 Latvians had been deported from their homeland, by 1952 Lithuanians had counted 350,000 deported and 25,000 killed, and by 1955 a total of 90,000 Estonians had been sent to Siberia.

The spirit of these people, whose struggles for national existence date back to the Middle Ages, has not been broken by two decades of Soviet misrule. Refugees still reach free soil and report that the old indomitable fire still burns strongly.

In the United States a year of mourning was observed in 1960 by the American Baltic Commemorative Committee under the honorary chairmanship of Herbert Hoover. The purpose was to "make these brave people realize that their friends in the free world have not forgotten them."

A similar observance is overdue. In fact, this should be an annual affair, with all free nations invited to join in.

The crime that struck down Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania was the initial step in the march that has brought the communist threat so close to the West today. If a final accord with the Russian government is ever possible, it should not fail to right the wrong that was visited upon the proud, free peoples of these Baltic countries.

It isn't likely that the familiar schoolmarm of grade school will ever be replaced entirely by the male. But a male teacher who believed that what first grade children from the slums might need was the image of the autocratic father now has proof that there is validity to his theory.

Tests of the children taught for the last year by George O. Cureton at Morton Street School in Newark, N. J., show that all are above the second-grade level in reading ability. The class, collectively, is a year and a half ahead of grade level.

Boys were especially benefited. Two troupes of children taught by women teachers, serving as controls in the experiment, attained the second-grade level but few exceeded it.

Cureton has a relatively simple theory. He contends that, when the child does not have a strong male image in the home, it is the duty of the school to provide it right in the beginning, which is the first grade.

Moreover, Cureton ran his class autocratically, obtaining thereby a discipline in which the learning process thrived.

Fostered by a smugness that promotes a false notion of juvenile freedom, the declining role of the father has without doubt contributed to present day ills.

Americans two centuries ago complained about mail delivery, the National Geographic says. Colonists grumbled that letters crossing the Atlantic took two weeks longer westbound than eastbound. Benjamin Franklin, Deputy Postmaster General of the Colonies, blamed the Gulf Stream. In 1769, he advised captains of British mail packets sailing west to the New World not to fight the current, and drew a chart of it.

WASHINGTON — "Of all the reckless devastations of our natural heritage, none is more shameful than the continued poisoning of our rivers!"

President Johnson said that. Growing water pollution is one thing you can't escape. Whoever you are, wherever you live, rich or poor, water pollution affects you — right now.

It's a "malady of civilization" that's spread to every nook and corner of this land of ours.

It is ugly, costly, dangerous. And the tragic thing is the fact that so many Americans view it with indifference.

It closes our beaches, prevents our youngsters from wading and swimming; it fills our lakes, streams with scum, killing fish. Foam garbage, oil, debris, sewage, et cetera — put it all under the label of water pollution.

Eventually this "curtain of scum" will affect your farm, your factory, your home, even your life, unless some concerted effort is made to stop it.

What can we do about water pollution?

STANDARDS SET

Olivia de Havilland won the Academy Award for "To Each His Own" in 1946 and "The Heiress" in 1949, but to thousands of movie goers she will always be the gentle Melanie of "Gone With the Wind" or the love interest in a series of Errol Flynn swashbucklers.

She has created more than 40 characters on the screen and most of them feature a variety and depth of characterization that have earned her the reputation as one of Hollywood's better actresses.

She was born in 1916 of English parents in Tokyo. Her sister is the movie actress Joan Fontaine. When Olivia was three years old, her parents separated and later divorced. Her mother took the girls to California and married George Fontaine, a department store owner.

The role of Puck in "Midsummer Night's Dream" brought her to the attention of movie makers at Warner Brothers. She was typecast as the pretty, demure leading lady and she made nine films with Flynn, including "Adventures of Robin Hood," "Dodge City" and "The Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex."

Her portrait of the proud teacher in "Hold Back the Dawn" showed her flexibility as an actress. In 1946, she turned in two of her finest roles—the unwed mother in "To Each His Own" and the identical twins of "The Dark Mirror." In succession, she made memorable "The Snake Pit," "The Heiress," "Not as a Stranger" and "My Cousin Rachel."

From time to time she has turned to the stage in such plays as "Gift of Time," "Romeo and Juliet" and "What Every Woman Knows."

Since 1955 she has been living in Paris.

.. And Speaking
Of Your Health

When will the new drug that is being tested for asthma be available? Each week I devote one column to "Hopeful News in Medicine" in an effort to bring encouragement to many people with chronic illnesses. The response to a new drug, disodium cromoglycate, that is being tested, has been understandably great because there are so many people all over the world who suffer from asthma.

The preliminary reports about the drug has called forth a great deal of enthusiasm by the doctors who are using it experimentally. My purpose in bringing it to the attention of my readers is to let them know that in hospitals and laboratories all over the country there are scientists who are devoting themselves to such important problems.

A new drug being used in its trial stages is never available for general use. Only after the drug is found to be exceedingly safe and free from toxic effects does the Pure Food and Drug Administration give its sanction for general distribution.

Patients frequently call their doctor's attention to a new, experimental drug like this one hoping that they can become part of the testing program. Their anxiety about their condition makes many offer themselves as volunteers for trial studies.

When this or any drug is finally found to be free of all dangers, it is reported in the scientific journals and then becomes known to physicians everywhere. Doctors then carefully choose the particular kind of case that might benefit from its use. When new information is released I shall again write about this drug and the inhalator that was devised to relieve the spasms of asthma.

Can headache be caused by overexertion?

The kinds and causes of headaches are so numerous and so complex that no single statement about any type of headache can be made without complete knowledge of a person's general condition.

Headache is probably one of the most common symptoms in the presence, or the absence, of physical or emotional disease. Headache, as a symptom, is particularly peculiar because of the vague terms used to describe almost any feeling or sensation in the head. An earache, a toothache, disturbances of vision, or an emotional upset can all be called "a headache," when in reality they refer to a "pain in the head."

There are very definite headaches that are caused by exercise, exertion, coughing and even bending in an unusual position.

When doctors get to know their patients well, they understand what patients mean when they complain of headache. They immediately seek to rule out migraine, sinus infection, eye strain, neuralgia and toxic reactions to drugs.

Headaches can be severely distressing and even those that are not caused by emotional upsets can be responsible for psychological disturbances that are far worse than the headache itself.

It takes a great deal of sleuthing to uncover the exact reason for a headache. Headache sufferers sometimes make notes of everything they eat, or do and try to find a relationship between them and the onset of a headache. Only when the exact cause is brought to light can specific drugs, antihistamines and pain relieving medicines be used to control it. Occasionally, special insight into one's emotional state is necessary to learn why a headache happens.

The bidding:

Opening lead — king of hearts.

This hand occurred in the match between Italy and Argentina during the 1959 world championship.

The Argentine West (Berisso) bid a spade and Avarelli, playing the Roman Club, overcalled with three hearts. This indicated a heart-club hand in the Italian method of bidding.

After East (Jaques) passed, Belladonna showed support for his partner's implied club length by bidding four clubs. Berisso bid four spades and Avarelli, pleased with the voluntary club bid, went to five clubs.

Jaques did not know whether to believe his eyes or his ears, but, fully trusting both, he doubled.

West led the heart king and shifted to a low diamond. East took the ace and returned a diamond, ruffed in dummy. The heart queen lost to the king and the diamond return was won by declarer. A club to the ace was followed by the jack of hearts. East ruffed with the 5 of spades. Belladonna discarded a spade.

A diamond return was ruffed in dummy and another heart lead was ruffed by East with the ten, South discarding another spade.

East led his last diamond, ruffed in dummy with the nine. The jack of clubs return trapped East's Q-4, since declarer still had the K-5. Belladonna lost no more tricks, but went down 800.

However, this disastrous result was more than balanced by the Italians at the other table when the bidding went:

Chairadia (West), playing the Neapolitan club, opened with a diamond. After North bid a heart and Forquet four diamonds, West bid his real suit, spades.

Undaunted, North ventured five clubs. Forquet doubled, thus duplicating the contract at the other table. The Argentine declarer did not play the hand as well as Belladonna and went down five — 1,400 points!

Anti Humphrey Democrats Meet In Chicago

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article was written by Bob Bergman, wire editor of this newspaper. A graduate of Washington University, St. Louis, Mo., Bergman is a careful student of national political affairs and something of a walking encyclopedia on the subject of American political figures, past and present. He manages to combine serious interest in his subject with friendly but sometimes amused tolerance. He did some field work over the weekend with a trip to Chicago for a first-hand look at the convention of the Democratic Coalition for an Open Convention.

By BOB BERGMAN

Here are some observations of a visitor to Chicago who spent the weekend in the camp of dissident Democrats.

Saturday night at the Sherman House the lobby was filled with young people and a few older people sporting McCarthy buttons and various badges as delegates to the Coalition for an Open Convention which was going full blast.

Minuteograph proposals and statements were being handed out right and left.

On various bulletin boards were messages: "We have a VIP coming from Oklahoma at 7 p.m. in Room 720."

"Black Caucus all day (closed) Room 107."

"Plenary session," "Labor Caucus," "Illinois Caucus,"

"Caucus of Race and Poverty subcommittee," "Fourth Party Alternative meeting," "Student meeting at midnight to-night."

The plenary session of the Coalition in the evening was staged in a large room in a setting like a national convention with state signs placed beside chairs. Large banners on walls proclaimed "California—85 percent of the people voted for change" (referring to the Kennedy victory in June); "New York—45 percent of the people voted for change."

REV. JACKSON SPEAKS

The Rev. Jesse Jackson, "mayor" of the recently disbanded Resurrection City in Washington, wearing a patterned sport shirt was addressing the meeting. He was an eloquent speaker, spinning off clever phrase like "constipated capitalism" faster than you could keep up. But his manner was incendiary. He obviously had his audience's rapt attention as he promised that the Goal of Resurrection City would not be crushed by the bulldozers that leveled the tent city's site. He also made a slap at news coverage of events at Resurrection City, implying that he was giving them the real news now.

He also stressed the point that every significant committee in Congress is controlled by men 65 or over, old people, he said, who don't have sympathy for the poor.

Another speaker was a representative of Chavez, leader of the farm labor strikers, who have been trying to improve the conditions of migrants and who have been on strike in Delano, Calif., for two years.

The purpose of the Coalition for an Open Convention apparently was to stop Vice President Humphrey for getting the Democratic presidential nomination in August but some Kennedy supporters seemed wary of switching to McCarthy at this time, although others did change their allegiance.

MCCARTHY RALLY

Sunday night at a big McCarthy for President rally held at the new Auditorium Theater in Chicago, some show business personalities appeared to get the capacity crowd warmed, such as folk singers Peter, Paul and Mary, Columnists Cleveland Amory and Sidney Harris, actors Dick Benjamin and Paula Prentiss and others. Then young Stewart Mott was introduced as a man who has given $100,000 to the McCarthy campaign. He then went into a sales pitch and the hat was literally passed around the auditorium with big contributors getting special mention for helping the "poor man's" candidate. The goal being set was at least a quarter million dollars.

McCarthy received a big standing ovation when he finally appeared and delivered his address, spiced with humor.

He cited the results of the various state primaries and said the will of the American people was being blocked by the politicians. He also challenged Humphrey to a debate on the issues, such as peace in Vietnam.

He also made some cracks, saying that the administration is taking over the infallibility which the Vatican Council relinquished. Eventually, he speculated, the White House may make its decisions known simply by sending up white smoke. He also noted, in passing, that the administration was carrying on a "holy war" in Vietnam.

Afterwards, a reception was held for the candidate, who was closely guarded by Secret Service men.

The Coalition adopted a resolution Sunday, saying "We cannot be satisfied by the nomination of Hubert H. Humphrey or any other candidate representing existing policies of this administration."

The group, known as the Coalition for an Open Convention, adopted a resolution Sunday, saying "We cannot be satisfied by the nomination of Hubert H. Humphrey or any other candidate representing existing policies of this administration."

The coalition also approved a resolution pledging to work for the nomination of a Democratic presidential candidate "Who reflects the will expressed by Democratic voters throughout the country in the primary campaigns."

Humphrey is considered the front-runner in delegate strength.

Many of the 1,200 conference delegates are active in behalf of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy's bid for the Democratic presidential nomination, but the gathering did not endorse any candidate at the two-day meeting.

DEAN'S LIST

Van Buren Undersheriff Monroe Is Dead At 54

By BILL HAMILTON
Paw Paw Bureau

PAW PAW — Richard Monroe, undersheriff of Van Buren county, died Saturday afternoon while driving his car in Arlington township.

Deputies said Monroe, 54, had left the sheriff's office in Paw Paw, gone to see a relative in Bloomingdale, and was apparently on his way home when he was stricken.

A passing motorist noted a car in the ditch on county road 673, north of Lawrence near Fisk Lake. Seeing a man in the car, he called officers at about 6:35 p.m. Deputies arrived at the scene and found Monroe, alone in the car, slumped in the seat. NATURAL CAUSES

Sheriff Richard Stump said an autopsy indicated Monroe had died of natural causes. The car had run off the road and come to a stop after going through some brush and small trees.

Monroe was named undersheriff of Van Buren county on September 27, 1967. He had been a deputy in the department since March, 1965. Prior to that time, he had served as a part-time officer for the village of Lawrence and as a special deputy.

Monroe was born Oct. 11, 1913, at the family homestead, route 2, Lawrence, and was still residing there at the time of his death. He graduated from Lawrence high school in 1931, attended Parsons Business School in Kalamazoo, and took several courses at Western Michigan university.

He served nearly four years in the U.S. Air Force during World War II, including 18 months in England and Europe. He was appointed a non-com-

Coloma Parking Trial Has A Reverse Twist

By SAN DEE WALLACE
Staff Writer

COLOMA — Members of the Coloma Jaycees started out Sunday morning to show Coloma residents how parallel parking in the downtown area would look.

They began at 8 a.m. and planned to conduct a three-hour demonstration. The demonstration, however, was cut short at about 9:30 a.m. when the participating members found their cars being ticketed for illegal parking.

President of the Jaycees, Ronald San Cartier said the Jaycees began studying the possibility of changing the parking from angle to parallel in the early spring of 1967.

They presented the idea to the city commission and, according to San Cartier, the city commission passed a motion to make the change on Oct. 9, 1967, with the changeover to become effective on Jan. 1, 1968.

He said that in early December of 1967, some merchants appeared before the commission to protest the change. At that time, said San Cartier, the commission voted to extend the effective date for 90 days, or April 1, 1968. It was the intention, he said, to study the possibility of providing off-street parking. He said that by changing the parking it would eliminate one third of the parking space on the street.

San Cartier stated Sunday morning that he felt the "two city commissioners who ordered Police Chief Kenneth Unruh to issue tickets to all cars parked parallel in Coloma downtown business area, may have been in error."

"According to our studies made of the minutes of all general and special meetings of the city commission, made available to us, we feel that parallel parking was and should have been legally in effect as of April 1, 1968.

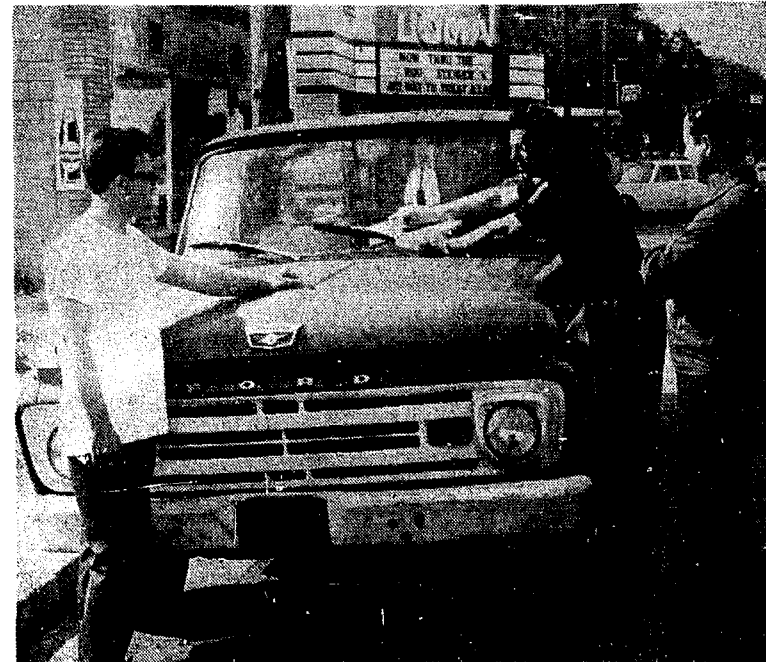

"The demonstration, Sunday morning, was staged to show the people in the area what their community would look like and how accidents would be minimized if parallel parking was in effect. We had no intention of harming any business and showed this by leaving ample parking available in front of every store that was open."

MAYOR'S STAND

Mayor Anton said this morning that the new parking order did actually go into effect as of April 1, 1968. He said, however, there is another ordinance on the books for which the Jaycees were actually ticketed. This is, that cars must park the way the lines are painted on the street.

Currently, Anton said, the lines are painted on the street for angle parking. Anton also said that he is for the parallel parking because of the safety factor involved and added that the traffic flow in the downtown Coloma area "has increased beyond comprehension."

JAYCEES TICKETED: Members of the Coloma Jaycees are issued parking tickets by Coloma Police Chief Kenneth Unruh during an attempt by the Jaycees to show Coloma residents how parallel parking would look in the downtown area. Jaycees began the demonstration early Sunday morning but about 1½ hours later Unruh was ordered to ticket the parallel parked cars for parking "illegally" by two city commissioners. From left are Jaycees President Ronald San Cartier, Unruh and Coloma Mayor Gust Anton. Jaycees believe parallel parking is legal in Coloma. (Howard Kosbau photo)

NEWS OF MARKETS

Wall Street Registers Mild Gains

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market made a tentative advance early today. Trading was fairly active.

After three straight sessions of decline, the balance shifted to the upside.

Gains outnumbered losses by more than 100 issues on the New York Stock Exchange. The Dow Jones Industrial Average was up about a point.

All Big Three motors were fractional losers. The major steels and the electronic group were mixed, along with many others.

Alcan Aluminum was up more than a point on good volume.

Also active and higher Zayer Corp. advanced about 2 1/2 and Outboard Marine 1 1/2, while Great American Holdings tacked on about a point.

Fractionally higher on good volume were such stocks as American Telephone, Imperial Corp., Occidental Petroleum and RCA.

Because of the series of market closings to allow brokerage houses to catch up with paper work, this will be the first week in about two months that there will be three straight days on which exchanges will be open.

Some brokers think this will be helpful in sustaining a bullish mood.

American Telephone rose 3/4 to 50 1/4 on 10,700 shares. RCA gained 1/2 at 47 1/2 on 6,800.

On Friday, the Associated Press Average of 60 Stocks dropped .2 to 339.7.

Prices advanced on the American Stock Exchange. Resorts International "A" (formerly Mary Carter Paints) advanced a couple of points. Gains of about a point were made by National Industries, Cott Corp. and Reliance Insurance. Fractional gains were made by Brazilian Traction, Airlift International, Astrodata and Lodge & Shipley.
